POPE FRANCIS:

Fathers Be Close to Your Children. I ask for you (fathers) the grace to be ever closer to your children; allow them to grow, but be close, close! They need you, your presence, your closeness, your love. May you be for them, as St. Joseph was: guardians of their growth in age, wisdom, and grace. May you guard them on their journey: be educators and walk with them. And by this closeness, you will be true educators.

"I WAS ILL AND YOU CARED FOR ME" (Mt. 25:36) Occasions for visiting the sick can be endless inasmuch as illness displays so many variations. The debilities of old age, the sorrows of cancer and disease, of mental and emotional trials – the occasions are plentiful if only we have the heart for great love. And who has not an opportunity often in a friend or family member? Yet the personal challenge in this corporal work of mercy requires a concentrated spiritual effort. St. Augustine described it in this way. One must become as if sick oneself in drawing close to the sick, not as though having the same affliction, but by considering with sympathy how one would desire to be treated if sick oneself. This capacity to identify ourselves with the sick person's suffering is not to experience an identical pain. But it does entail drawing near to the primary need of the sick person. The very sick person often suffers the depressing worry of being a burden to others. To encourage them, to shine hope on a possible recovery, to show our enjoyment of being in their company – these are true acts of mercy. The sick need to know from our own love for them that they have lost nothing of their essential attractiveness. “When we attend to the wounds and bruises of the poor, never forget they are Christ’s wounds” (Mother Teresa).
